Old Town Cemetery, now a park,	page	1
Private, east of the park	"	41
Methodist,	"	52
Back of Presbyterian Church,	"	62

Josephine C. Frost
(Mrs. Samuel Knapp Frost)
Brooklyn

This cemetery, known as the "Town Cemetery" was on ground belonging to the township of Hempstead and consequently was greatly neglected. The ground was finally given into the cahrge of the Village Trustees and they had the place carefully surveyed by Thomas V. Smith, so as to locate each grave, and a copy of each inscription filed with the Village Clerk and the stones put under ground and a park made of the space.

This Park lies next east of the Presbyterian Church. The stones were covered in 1897

When this copy was made, in November 1904, the stones which are underscored with red ink were still standing and no reason could be found as to why.

Ann Ryder is my name,
And England is my nation
Hempstead is my dwelling place
And Christ is my Salvation
When I am dead and in my grave
And all my bones are rotten
Then take this stone and on it look
When I am quite forgotten.
